Markey Wins

By JON BISHOP
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON/TEWKSBURY—Representative Ed Markey, a thirty-seven year congressional veteran, defeated newcomer Gabriel Gomez, a private equity investor from Cohasset, on Tuesday, securing fifty-five percent of the overall vote in the race to replace former Senator John Kerry.

But these results didn't hold true in Town Crier territory.

Gomez was the winner in both towns, securing 2,668 votes in Wilmington and 3,287 in Tewksbury. Markey received 1,715 and 2,120, respectively.

Nerdwallet ranks Wilmington #2 in top ten MA towns to raise families

By JON BISHOP
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON — Nerdwallet, a consumer advocacy site founded in 2009, has listed Wilmington as the second best community in the state in which to raise a family. All Massachusetts cities and towns were surveyed.

According to Mike

Anderson, Nerdwallet's analyst, the survey was conducted over a two week period. They examined the quality of public schools, affordability, and the strength of the local economy.

"We figured those were the variables young families look at," he said.

It wasn't difficult to place Wilmington at number two.

"[Wilmington] does look like a great place, given all those variables," he said. "In comparison to other studies...it looked like income stretched further in Wilmington."

He also said that Wilmington "was so much more affordable" than other communities.

Selectmen round-up

Dispatchers' contract approved

Town Counsel looking for more funding

By CHRISTINE KENNEY
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - The Board of Selectmen unanimously approved a collective bargaining agreement between the town and the New England Police Benevolent Association, Local 101, Dispatchers' Union at the meeting on Monday, June 24. Town Manager Jeffrey Hull said the agreement, which requested a 2.5 percent increase in compensation each year for three years beginning this July, was reached to address the high turnover rates the town has seen in dispatchers.

According to Hull, the compensation for dispatchers in Wilmington is on the low end of the salary spectrum. The town did a survey of several communities, including Lexington, Dedham, Tewksbury, Billerica, Reading, and North Andover, to come to this conclusion.

"We want to get it more to the 'middle of the road' and hopefully that will encourage more people to stay with us for a longer period of time," Hull said.

The dispatchers currently work off a seven step compensation program, in which workers can earn more money and gain a "step" depending on experience. The agreement proposed that the differential between each step was increased by half a percent.

Town Counsel Contract

Another agreement listed on the agenda referred to town counsel's compensation. According to Hull, John Foskett of Deutsch, Williams, Brooks, DeRensis & Holland had implied that he and his firm had put in more work than what was originally expected of them.

"He indicated that over the last four years, and this year also, the amount of legal time that the firm has had to devote to the town of Wilmington business has exceeded what they had anticipated and in consequence, he and the firm are looking for additional compensation," Hull said.

Selectman Louis Cimaglia suggested the board table the matter due to the differences the contract contained compared to prior years.

Relay for Life Recap

Joseph Martiniello, event chair of Wilmington Relay for Life, and Jennifer Wassan, community executive for the American Cancer Society, attended the meeting to provide the selectmen with a recap of the June 14-15 event, which was held at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School. According to Martiniello, this year's event raised almost $95,000, and since Wilmington began the event, approximately $702,000.

He noted some exceptional fundraisers, including one individual who raised more than $11,000, and teams that have raised anywhere from $35,000 to $60,000 over the past four or five years. He also took a moment to thank the community for its support.

Wassan noted that she had never seen such an outpouring of support, particularly from businesses, like that which occurred when Wilmington first took on this event.

"Our goal is to finish the fight, and you are helping to do that with continued support and dedication to the event," Wassan said. "We want to make this a staple of the Wilmington community for years to come."

Mario Marchese was installed as Master of Friendship Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons Saturday night, along with Erik T. Palm Sr. Warden, Harold W. Woodbury Treasurer, Warren W. Berglund Asst. Treasurer, David J. Sargent Jr. Warden, James R. Manuel Secretary, and Richard R. Searfoss Asst. Secretary. Marchese is pictured here with a ceremonial gavel made from Old Ironsides. The Battle of Gettysburg... revisited

By LARZ F. NEILSON

"Four score and seven years ago" are the immortal words of Abraham Lincoln, in his Gettysburg address, delivered in November 1863, some four months after the Battle of Gettysburg.

There is another Gettysburg address, and it rises from the same battle — Colgrove Avenue near Spangler Meadow in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. That is the location of a memorial to the men killed defending Culp's Hill on the third day of the battle. On that monument are the names of three men from Wilmington, Massachusetts.

Culp's Hill is not the most famous part of the battle of Gettysburg. There is Little Roundtop, where the 20th Maine held the end of the Union line, preventing a Confederate flanking. When the 20th ran low on ammunition, Col. Joshua Chamberlain ordered a bayonet charge, completely surprising the Confederates.

And there is Pickett's Charge, the last futile effort of the Confederates at Gettysburg. The loss sent Gen. Robert E. Lee limping back South, his image of invincibility shattered.

The fighting at Culp's Hill took place on the second and third days of the battle, July 2 and 3, 1863. The XII Corps, which included the Second Massachusetts Infantry, conducted a brilliant defense of Culp's Hill.

On the third day, there was a futile attack by two Union regiments near Spangler's Spring. General Slocum, observing from a distant hill and believing that the Confederates were faltering, ordered troop to retake the works the Confederates had captured. The order was passed and it was misinterpreted to mean a direct frontal assault on the Confederate position. The two regiments selected for the assault, the 2nd Massachusetts and the 27th Indiana, with a total of 650 men against the 1,000 Confederates behind the works, with 100 yards of open field in front. When Lt. Col. Charles Mudge of the 2nd Massachusetts heard the order he insisted that the officer repeat it. He was then quoted as saying "Well, it is murder, but it's the order." The two regiments attacked in sequence with the Massachusetts men in front, and they were both repelled with terrific losses: 43 percent of the Massachusetts soldiers, 32 percent of the Indians.

Corporal Ted Butters of Wilmington, wounded at the Battle of Gettysburg, died on July 30, 1863. He was not a bugler; the instrument was probably a photographer's prop. The picture was taken when he was a private. Town Crier File Photo

General Thomas Ruger spoke of the misconstrued order as "one of those unfortunate occurrences that will happen in the excitement of battle."

Three men from Wilmington died in that futile assault or from wounds received there. George Bailey, Ted Butters, and James Edmonds are among the men honored on that monument.

The Second Massachusetts Infantry was the first volunteer organization to leave Massachusetts for action in the Civil War. It became one of the most outstanding regiments in the war for the Union Army. It was not offered by politicians, but by a West Pointer, Col. George H.

Gordon. Sixteen of the officers were Harvard men, and 13 of those would lose their lives in the war.

Recruiting began on the 25th of April, 1862, when a recruiting office opened on State Street in Boston. In Woburn, 49 men formed a company. On May 25, a group of young men from Wilmington were accepted into the regiment. Town Hall records do not agree with state records as to who was who. Town records list 12 men, but state records only have ten in Company G, Second Regiment.

Joining the Second Massachusetts on May 25 were George B. Bailey, Thomas A. Bancroft, Theodore S. Butters, James T. Edmonds (of Billerica), Simeon Jaquith (of Woburn), John E. James, Charles A. Nichols (maybe of Lawrence), Hiram Pearson (of Tewksbury), Henry E. Stickney, Elbridge G. Taylor, and John H. White.

George Bailey lived on Chestnut Street, near Butters Row. George was 23 when he enlisted. He was taken prisoner in August 1862 near Manassas Junction. He returned to duty on October 26. He was killed in action at Gettysburg on July 3, 1863.

Thomas Theodore Butters was born on Butters Row May 21, 1841, the son of Lorenzo and Angeline Butters. Lorenzo was a good mathematician, a great reader and was able to quote extensively from the poetry of the day. He was a selectman and was also on the school committee for the South School. Each school had such a committee at that time.

Their home was very near the old Middlesex Canal and the old South School in a part of town where there were many Butters families. Ted Butters was a seventh generation descendant of Will Butter, who was probably the first white settler in what is now Wilmington.

Judging from the records, Ted Butters was a capable soldier. He was made a corporal in March 1863.

Ted Butters was wounded on the third day of Gettysburg, July 3, 1863, on Culp's Hill. A bullet passed through his leg, shattering the bone. As was so common in the Civil War, his leg was amputated by surgeons. He died on July 30, 1863 at age 22.

Communications and transportation had been developed in the Northeast, and Ted's 18-year-old sister Lucilia learned via telegraph that he had been wounded. She took a train to Gettysburg to be with him, but arrived on July 31, the day after he died.

James T. Edmonds is shown in the Wilmington records as being a Wilmington resident, but he probably lived in Billerica. He was 29 when he enlisted, probably the oldest of the Wilmington men. His occupation was listed as teamster.

Edmonds was wounded at the Battle of Cedar Mountain, Virginia on August 9, 1862. He recovered and was returned to action. Then he was wounded at Culp's Hill in Gettysburg on July 3, 1863. He died of his wounds on July 20.

Wilmington man injured in accident

TEWKSBURY - A Wilmington man drove into a tree on a quiet, South Tewksbury sidestreet Thursday night, wrecking his car and earning trip to the hospital.

Police and fire crews were called to Rounsevell Road after 9PM Thursday night following a significant one-car accident where the driver slammed his 1996 gray Dodge Intrepid across the center line and into a tree on the opposite side of the road, crushing the hood nearly half-way up the engine compartment.

Tewksbury Police would not release the name of the driver, citing HIPAA privacy regulations. Saints Paramedics were on hand Thursday night to aid Tewksbury EMTs from the Fire Department. The driver was later transported to the hospital where he is currently recovering.

Officers called the State Police Accident Reconstruction Team to the scene Thursday night and the incident remains under investigation.

Letters to the editor

Do you know where your water comes from?

Dear Editor,
June is Rivers Month! Why celebrate/protect Rivers? Lot's of reasons. Take a child to a river bank to look for frogs or on a canoe trip. It will be clear why when those curious eyes light up and a million questions follow. More seriously, life would not be as we know it today with out them. Rivers not only supply excellent opportunities for recreation they also supply life giving water for us to drink. Most likely the majority of people in communities like Wilmington, that do not use private wells, do not know the source of their water. Wilmington gets most of our water from the Ipswich River Basin. At times, some water comes from the Swift River Basin, via Quabbin Reservoir.

Rivers are constantly under pressure to supply water and threatened by stormwater pollution. Yes water from the streets goes right into the rivers. We all are responsible for the these impacts. We all can do better to conserve water. Water your lawn only during designated times (which you can find on the water department website or call), install water saving appliances, turn water off when brushing your teeth, just to mention a few.

Stormwater pollution is a huge and complicated threat to the health of the river. Wilmington (and Burlington) is the birth place of the Ipswich River, a.k.a theHeadwaters. The Ipswich River still today literally puts food on the table. We have an awesome responsibility to folks down stream. Did you know that the water in Wilmington eventually finishes it journey to Ipswich Bay? Ipswich Bay is part of the Plum Island sound which is part of the Great Marsh. The Ipswich Clam industry depends on clean water entering the Bay. When polluted stormwater makes its way into the Bay the flats close down. People from all over the world come to Ipswich and the surrounding area to eat these clams.

What can you do? Use less pesticides, if any at all. Most importantly, educate yourself, your children. Volunteer. Donate. To celebrate Rivers Month the Ipswich River Watershed Association (IRWA) is giving away the new awesome IpswichRiver Paddling Guide and Map! if you join in June. Even more exciting, a supporter will match your donation, so if you give $100, it turns into $200. IRWA has also up dated its website, check it out here <http://ipswichriver.org/>. IRWA depends on donations so please think about helping to be the voice the River needs. Help provide guardianship for this incredibly important resource for many more generations to come. We simply can not do it with out people like you.

Thank you so much for your time! Hope more folks from our area will get out there and enjoy this awesome resource, the Ipswich River Basin! Any questions feel free to contact me at swampy435@gmail.com or call me, I am in the book. Happy Rivers Month! Suzanne Sullivan

With Love and Appreciation

Dear Editor,
We would like to try to extend our gratitude to the entire Tewksbury Community. The Tewksbury Fire Department will never know how much we appreciate how they treated our son Shane. The Tewksbury Police Department was outstanding and Shane himself would be so impressed with the amount of Police that came out for him. The respect that we have for both the Police and Fire is unmentionable. The entire Tewksbury Public School Department has been so supportive to our family and the children of this Town and words cannot express all that has been done for us. Tewksbury Youth Baseball and the Majors Royals showed us what being part of a team is really all about. The Tewksbury High Football team, Tewksbury

Youth Football and Tucker's team, Tewksbury Blue, all went above and beyond.

Neither Tucker nor I grew up in this Town and we cannot fathom how many people came out to support us. We still cannot wrap our heads around the whole situation. We are trying to find the words to say THANK YOU but there are none.....

Our entire family is honored to have all of you in our lives and are completely overwhelmed with all the support. If nothing else, continue to SMILE as we all remember Shane and a lesson learned is to live for today because we don't know what tomorrow brings!

With Much Love and Appreciation,
Tucker, Moe and TJ Contalonis

Home Sweet Home

Not all those who wander are lost.

- J. R. R. Tolkien

Last year my grandfather's house in East Boston was sold after close to a century in the same family. My elder cousin had lived in the third-floor apartment for as long as I can remember. In her middle to late eighties she was still going up and down the stairs effortlessly and walking to Maverick Station and getting on the "T" for transportation. In the worst way I wanted to buy the house, a classic three-decker, free-standing, with pretty bow windows and with something else quite rare in East Boston - off-street parking! The house is on the corner of Orleans Street and Orleans Place, which means they had their own little street to share with only two other similar houses. But I talked myself out of buying a house - that house - for sentimental reasons. Real estate has to be a good investment first, right? But every time I pass 28 Orleans Street (I still go back to the neighborhood all the time), I want the house. I pull to the curb, stop and stare, with an unexplainable longing, considering I never lived there. One time I caught myself saying, "I'm thinking of moving "back" to East Boston."

Inherited memory (also called genetic memory) is a process in which the memory is passed down through generations without any first-hand experience. It's a psychological or ethereal theory, and controversial, with no hard proof. But the theory appeals to me, and my own personal observations say it exists.

A while back I read a book called "House As A Mirror of Self." The book is mainly about the extreme attachment some of us feel for our houses. But the author also writes about the meaning of home and how our homes are a reflection of our inner selves in many ways. The influential Swiss psychotherapist Carl Jung is quoted in the forward and off-and-on throughout the book. In later years Jung built a stone house, taking several years to complete. Allowing his psyche to rule the design, as a final act of self-realization, Jung believed that the physical act of building his house was an outward manifestation of his unconscious mind - a way for him to cement the meaning of home. (Did you follow that?)

Unlike Jung, I don't have a compulsion to build my own stone house but I do have a need to continue returning to the old neighborhood to retrace my invisible footsteps, those of my father and grandfather before me, whose shoes I surely walked in, spiritually speaking, that is. Most of the people and places have changed but the streets remain the same, so as I saunter in and out of the old and the new, following my bliss, I reminisce.

My three favorite Italian bakeries are in East Boston, Revere and Everett. Sometimes I actually go to all three in the same day. Each one has its own distinctive identity, so I like to pick and choose some of what's best from each. Let's start with the A&L Bakery on Sumner Street in East Boston. Family-owned and operated for decades, this small, unpretentious little gem is the most reasonably priced bakery you'll ever walk into. And it's just as good as anything in the North End, where you will pay at least twice as much. They have a wide selection of Italian cookies, pies, biscotti, cannolis, squares and turnovers - and really good bread and pizza slices. Old-world quality and style keep the locals coming in and out all day long - the door never stops opening and closing. I'm sure there is no one who lives in this crowded, close-knit neighborhood who doesn't patronize the A&L daily. You can't do better.

After having lunch at Santarpio's or Off-the-Boat or The Italian Express - the three restaurants that I keep going back to again and again - lots of times we head to Luberto's on Broadway in Revere for coffee-and, only a few minutes drive away. What hits you first when you open the door to Luberto's is the dazzling interior design. Neon and glitter - snow white walls, a chrome and mirror ceiling, chrome-trimmed gleaming glass cabinets, and cases filled to the top with the most mouthwatering bakery delights you could dream of. You'll find tons of toothsome cookies, real cream puffs, fig and lemon squares, big muffins bursting with berries, fresh-fruit-filled shells, tasty pieces of pizza, and calzone to crave. The entry area is wide open and uncluttered, with café tables and chairs, perfect for sitting and sipping their great coffee served in white ceramic mugs. I like to sit in the full-front windows daydreaming, thoughts straying back, reclaiming time.

My aunt lives close by. When I asked Aunt Natalie if she goes to Luberto's often, she raised her eyebrows with an ever-so-slightly disdainful look and said, "We go to Elm Street." As if to say, I have spoken! Of course, I had to defer to her lifetime of experience and knowledge on these matters of importance.

Elm Street Bakery is a fixture in my aunt's compact Everett neighborhood. You can bet it's seldom that someone comes through the door who isn't a regular. When you think about how dense the neighborhood is, I'm sure the bakery is almost totally supported by customers who live less than a quarter of a mile away. And why would you go further? Elm Street is small in floor size but the cases are crammed full, and on top of the cases, Italian pastry confections are piled to the sky. You can't see the workers unless you try standing on your toes, craning your neck while trying to "communicate" what you want. Or you can stand in front of the register for a better view. From the common and traditional, to the fancy-pancy and specialty, this bantam bakery takes the cake - or should I say, takes the bread. You won't walk away empty-handed. Ambrosia.

It's not as if I walk with a swagger (ha), as if to say, move over, this is my turf. But when I'm wandering around those places where my relatives before me walked and talked and breathed the air, I know I fit in. It's as if, well it's as if I never left. Call it genealogy, or deja vu, or some kind of DNA magnetic chain. I know this place, I get around, I've been here before, you know. Stories, have I got stories, if you get my drift.

Let's Talk about Hearing

by Loleata Wigall

Fireworks - Noisy and Loud

The first documented fireworks were in the 7th century in China. Fireworks were used to celebrate festivals. China is the largest producer of fireworks. There are seven different colors that can be produced by fireworks. They are yellow, green, blue, purple, silver, orange and red. Today the largest purchaser of fireworks is the Disney Corporation. They have fireworks every night in all the parks.

This time of year, I think of fireworks and July 4th on the Esplanade in Boston. Interestingly, fireworks were part of the celebration in 1777 when we celebrated our one year declaration of independence. Then, when we finally formed the United States of America in 1789, fireworks were again part of the celebration. George Washington, our first president, enjoyed the fireworks display. I can now say I have something in common with our first President.

Fireworks can be dangerous. Every year over 200 people go to the Emergency Room with injuries from fireworks. Statistics show that 68% of the injuries are to men from age 45-64 years old. The most common injuries are burns to the hands and fingers. The next areas of injuries were to the eyes, face and ears. If a person goes to the Emergency Room, a hearing test is not performed so we do not have statistics on hearing loss from fireworks.

As an audiologist, I think of the loud noise, the boom that is synonymous with fireworks. One year we were camping at Acadia National Park in Maine. Bar Harbor, Maine has a July 4th fireworks display. It was suggested that watching the fireworks display from the top of Cadillac Mountain was an amazing experience. I have to say it was beautiful to see the fireworks from atop a mountain. But, it was definitely an odd experience to see the fireworks and then not hear any boom.

The boom is the loud part that can scare young children and animals. It is the boom that can cause hearing loss. But, it is the boom that makes the experience complete. To protect my hearing I use ear plugs that can be purchased at any pharmacy. They are inexpensive, and re-useable. And, best of all, they protect my hearing during the fireworks display over the Charles River.

Winchester Hospital Announces Plans to Affiliate with Lahey Health

Winchester Hospital and Lahey Health joining together to provide coordinated, community-based care

WINCHESTER, MA - Winchester Hospital's Board of Directors announced today that it has voted to enter into a letter of intent to affiliate with Lahey Health. The new partnership will allow both organizations to adapt to the evolving healthcare landscape and to continue providing high-quality, cost-efficient, community-based care for the communities they serve in northeast Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

"This is an exciting step forward," said Kevin Smith, president and CEO of Winchester Hospital. "Winchester Hospital and Lahey Health both have a strong commitment to providing the highest quality healthcare right here in our communities. We believe that by joining Lahey Health, Winchester Hospital will be better positioned to continue to fulfill its mission of serving the health needs of our patients. An affiliation with Lahey Health will make Winchester Hospital an even more effective partner in maintaining and improving the health of the communities we serve."

"Lahey Health and Winchester Hospital will make a great healthcare team," said Howard Grant, JD, MD, president and CEO of Lahey Health. "Two innovative organizations are aligning to create a comprehensive network of locally respected primary care physicians and nationally recognized specialists. Together we will provide greater value to our patients where they live and work by enhancing the scope and quality of services."

In August 2012, Winchester Hospital formed an Affiliation Steering Committee made up of physician, hospital and board leaders and engaged in a thoughtful process to identify a long-term, strategic partner that would provide the best opportunity to create an exceptional healthcare system. The Board is also supported by its strategic and financial advisor Navigant Capital Advisors, and its outside legal counsel Mintz Levin. Several hospitals and health systems participated in the extensive review process and ultimately Lahey Health was chosen as the preferred long-term strategic partner because of their clear and unwavering commitment to providing high-quality care locally and their track record of fiscal success and stability.

Under this affiliation the organizations will build a stronger system of care in key clinical program areas, including primary care, women's health, emergency medicine and cancer care. Winchester Hospital patients will gain access to tertiary level services locally through Lahey Health while maintaining access to Winchester Hospital providers.

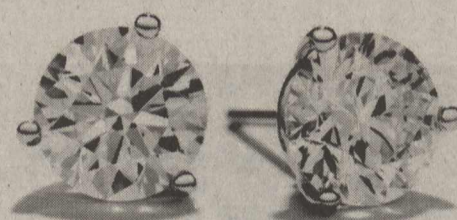

After completing the affiliation agreement, Winchester Hospital will join the Lahey Health Board of Trustees as part of a shared governance model. The Lahey Health Board of Trustees will consist of an equal number of representatives with full partnership from Winchester Hospital, the former Northeast Health System and Lahey Hospital & Medical Center Boards of Trustees. The organization will continue to be called Lahey Health, and Howard Grant, JD, MD, will remain as president and CEO and Ann-Ellen Hornidge will remain as chairperson of the Lahey Health Board of Trustees.

Winchester Hospital provides comprehensive healthcare services in the north-west suburban Boston region. Winchester Hospital has 20 clinical locations in nine towns throughout northeast Massachusetts. In addition to acute-care inpatient services, Winchester Hospital also provides an extensive range of outpatient services as well as integrated home care.

In 2012, Lahey Hospital & Medical Center affiliated with Beverly Hospital, Addison Gilbert Hospital and other Northeast Health System entities to form Lahey Health, a health system that provides a full continuum of integrated health services. Lahey Health includes Lahey Clinic physician group with practices in Burlington, Peabody and other locations throughout northeastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire; Lahey Health Senior Care and Lahey Health Behavioral Services as well as more than 30 primary care physician practices and multiple outpatient and satellite specialty care facilities.

EBT Reform

Glad to see Senator Bruce Tarr step up to reduce fraud and waste on Beacon Hill with EBT reform. The lack of oversight from the executive branch has been breathtaking on multiple levels, but it's time the abuse stops.

Student Loan Rates

Congress seems to be all talk and no action when it comes to many issues, most recently student loan rates. Why should a student have to pay higher interest rates for a college education than a homeowner pays for a mortgage? Figure it out, folks, and get it done!

The Town Crier agrees with the above writer. Representative John Tierney and Senator Elizabeth Warren have been working on one side of the issue, House Republicans another. Everyone should care about this issue and the rising indebtedness of our young people. Rates are set to rise to 6.8 percent on July 1, 2013 for new loans.

Two seniors win auto body grant

BILLERICA - On June 12, two seniors from Shawsheen Valley Technical High School's auto body program were recipients of a tool grant from AASP-MA (Association of Automotive Service Providers - Massachusetts).

Paul Ballota of Billerica and William Clough of Wilmington were the winners of the grant, which is worth more than $1,000 in tools. In order to win the grant, the students wrote an essay about how winning this tool grant would help them in continuing in the trade.

"This was a great opportunity for them," said Dennis Reppucci, an auto body shop instructor at Shawsheen. "I am really proud that these students completed the applications and followed through with this. It's a huge start for them."

While Reppucci helped provide some assistance to the students that completed the essays, he said Ballota and Clough did all of the writing themselves and submitted the entries on their own.

The award ceremony took place following the AASP-MA Golf Outing at the

Invention camp brings STEM to summer

Tewksbury (Grassroots Newswire) - The nationally acclaimed Club Invention summer program is returning to Tewksbury. Inspired and influenced by the National Inventors Hall of Fame Inductees, and sponsored by the United States Patent and Trademark Office, Club Invention is a weeklong summer enrichment program for children entering grades one through six. The program creatively immerses and engages its participants through hands-on activities in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM).

"Based on feedback from thousands of school districts around the country, Club Invention has earned a reputation as the leader in high-quality summer programming. This has helped the organization grow to a national program, serving over 80,000 children annually," explains Michael J. Oister, Chief Executive Officer for Invent Now. "Over 90% of parents and educators surveyed observed improvements in their child's and students' outlook on learning and increased interest in using science to solve problems."

Ryan School is hosting Club Invention during the week of July 8, 2013 and July 12, 2013. This year's Club Invention program is Geo-Quest which features the I Can Invent: Launchitude module, where children use physics and engineering to create a Duck Chucking device using components from everyday objects.

Each day, children rotate through integrated modules that employ creative thinking to solve real-world challenges. Children learn vital 21st century life skills such as problem solving and teamwork through imaginative exploration.

Even if a child has participated in Club Invention in the past, they will benefit from an all new curriculum, full of exciting adventures throughout the week.

33 Vintage El Caminos Burn up the Track at Lee Speedway

Tewksbury man shows off his 1987 Cabellero

June 16, 2013, North Andover MA -- Members of the National El Camino Owners Association (NECOA) returned this past weekend for their 5th visit to Lee USA Speedway and their annual Parade Laps and "Burnout Contest." Track Owner Red McDonald hosted the owners of these unique vehicles to put on a show for race fans just before the feature races of the night, which allows the NASCAR drivers more time to ready their race cars after the qualifying heats.

33 El Caminos from all over New England put on an entertaining show for the race fans with a rainbow of colors in these half-car/half-truck vehicles, produced from 1959 through 1987 by General Motors. For the second year in a row, Aj DiRocco of Pelham, NH won the burn out contest by a clear majority of the cheering fans and did not have to face off against other El Camino drivers. To put an exclamation point on his win, Aj did a finale "smoke" in which he took care of any mosquitoes near the Lee track and blew his tires for good measure to the delight of spectators. Also participating was Tewksbury resident Ed Shea, well-known in Super Modified racing circles in his Black 1987 GMC Caballero, a sister vehicle to the Chevrolet El Camino.

The El Camino drivers of NECOA belong to a nationwide group of 23,000 registered members, with a highly-regarded website: www.elcaminoocentral.com For information about the club, contact John Harris at necoa@verizon.net

Outdoor safety

When Thunder Roars, Go Indoors!

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. -- Thunderstorms and lightning are in the forecast for much of New England this week. To be safe from dangerous lightning follow this simple rule: When thunder roars, go indoors.

Lightning kills an average of 55-60 people a year in the U.S. But 90 percent of those who are struck survive, often with permanent neurological disabilities. Eighty percent of lightning fatalities occur among men who were fishing, boating, golfing, biking, or working outdoors.

To be safe remember the 30/30 rule: If you see lightning and cannot count to 30 before hearing thunder, lightning is close enough to strike you. Immediately move to safe shelter: a substantial building with electricity or plumbing or an enclosed, metal-topped vehicle with windows up. Stay in the safe shelter at least 30 minutes after you hear the last sound of thunder.

Indoor Lightning Safety

1. Stay off corded phones, computers and other electrical equipment that put you in direct contact with electricity.
2. Stay away from plumb-ing, including sinks, baths and faucets.

3. Stay away from windows and doors, and stay off porches.

4. Do not lie on concrete floors, and do not lean against concrete walls.

Outdoor Risk Reduction Tips

1. If you are in a forest, seek shelter in a low area under a thick growth of small trees.
2. In an open area go to a low place such as a ravine or valley. Be alert for flash floods.
3. On open water get to land and find shelter immediately.
4. Never lie flat on the ground.
5. Never shelter under an isolated tree.
6. Get away from ponds, lakes and other bodies of water.
7. Stay away from objects that conduct electricity (barbed wire fences, power lines, windmills, etc.)

To find out more and for resources to help teachers, communities, organizations and families stay safe from lightning dangers, go to www.ready.gov/thunderstorms-lightning or www.lightningsafety.noaa.gov.

Local schools receive grant for breakfast program and nutrition education

TEWKSBURY - Tewksbury Public Schools is proud to announce it has been awarded a $10,000 grant through the Healthy School Food Champions program, presented by the Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Foundation in partnership with the MA Department of Education and Mass in Motion. The Tewksbury School District was awarded this grant because of its commitment to the health of its students.

"Tewksbury Food Services supports learning by promoting healthy habits on and off the serving line... from the cafeteria -- classroom -- community! Bottom line, together we need to educate, practice and reinforce healthy lifestyle choices," said DebraLee Mugford, Director of Food & Nutrition Services for Tewksbury Public Schools.

The grant was written entirely by Mugford and her staff and submitted in May, with the grant awarded last week.

The school cafeteria is an important tool in any effort to create healthier environments for students in which they can receive the fresh, nutritious foods they need to be healthy kids and successful students. This grant will help make healthy choices more accessible to students at Tewksbury Public Schools through: nutrition education programs (Cafeteria - Classroom - Community); breakfast programs at Trahan and North Street Schools; purchasing equipment and food for training or tasting sessions; and training of Food Service staff.

"Educating and introducing kids to healthy eating at the elementary level reinforces the students to continue making healthy choices. We've seen it here, in our district, with whole wheat pizza, kale chips, and quinoa salad!" said Mugford. "Unfortunately, the costs of food and services are rising and to be effective requires additional funding and this can be challenging! Thanks to Harvard Pilgrim Health's THE HEALTHY SCHOOL FOOD CHAMPIONS grant for supporting our efforts."

Through the grant, students and parents will see a new breakfast program this fall at the Trahan and North Street Schools; hosting "FOODPLAY", an exciting theatre performance on Health & Nutrition for elementary school students and families; as well as nutrition education in the classroom for grades K through 4.

Mugford invites residents to check out Tewksbury's MyPlate video on the Food Service website, starring Ryan School 5th graders.

Parents will also be able to participate by completing a survey in late fall to assist the Food and Nutrition Services Department's efforts, and offer their feedback, suggestions, and more.

The Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Foundation aims to improve the health of all children across New England and improve their chances for long and productive lives through grants to evidence-based programs in schools and afterschool programs, support for policy development and advocacy, and publishing information on healthy eating and active living for children and families. The Healthy School Food Champions program will distribute a total of $220,000 in grants across Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts to improve school food.

Tewksbury students will begin to see the effects of this grant in Fall 2013.

Residents with questions are heartily encouraged to call or e-mail Mugford at dmugford@tewksbury.k12.ma.us, and 978-640-7822.

July 4 Deadliest Day on the Road

Survey shows 26 percent jump in teens who say texting while driving is distracting

Independence Day is typically a time for barbecues, family gatherings, and celebrating the birth of our nation, however, for many travelers this holiday it may end in tragedy. According to research from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS), July 4 is now the deadliest day on the road for all Americans.

In the U.S., car crashes are the number one cause of death for everyone ages 1-34, with teens crashing four times more often than any other age group. Based on the latest available data, IIHS reports that more than 670 people were killed on July 4 from 2007-2011, which equates to an average of 134 deaths on that day each year.

Teens accounted for six percent of the driving fatalities on July 4 but continue to be particularly susceptible to distracted driving incidents. Recent research from The Allstate Foundation found that 75 percent of teens admit that they find reading and responding to texts distracting behind-the-wheel, which is up significantly from the 49 percent reported by teens in 2009.

"There are simple things everyone can do this July 4 to stay safe such as never texting and driving," said Julia Reusch, Allstate Spokesperson. "It may sound basic but buckling up and driving within the speed limit are also important ways to stay safe this July 4."

Additional findings from The Allstate Foundation include:

• Teens still admit to texting: 39 percent of teen drivers admit to texting behind the wheel and six percent say they do it a lot.

• Teens are watching: 54 percent of teens reported seeing their parents using a phone while driving, up from 37 percent in 2009.

• Do as I say, not as I do: Interestingly, only 32 percent of parents admit to making and answering phone calls while driving.

• Teens feel comfortable speaking up: 87 percent of teens say they would speak up in a car with someone who was driving in a way that made them feel scared or uncomfortable, up from 59 percent in 2009.

Allstate urges Americans to do their part to make roads safer for all families during the Independence Day holiday. Here are three simple ways that parents and teens can help to have a safe holiday:

• Talk together about driving early and often. Parents should discuss the risks and responsibilities of driving with your child at a young age, and keep talking with their teen before, during and after the licensing process.

• Don't rush the training process. Just because teens have a permit or license doesn't mean they are ready for every driving condition. By easing into the training process, both parents and teens will feel assured they are more prepared for a variety of driving situations.

• Never text or drive distracted. Parents should be positive role models when they're behind the wheel. All drivers can pledge not to text and drive, and help reduce distracted driving deaths and injuries.

Parents and teens can take the pledge together at www.facebook.com/XtheTXT

From under Jenks Bridge to Plum Island Sound Where the Ipswich River begins

By DAN HALL
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - They are all around us, and are extremely important. They bring life and happiness to a community, and their destruction can yield certain doom for anyone living near them. They are part of our national conscious, a major part of our history and mythology as a nation and a world. The things being described are not the ancient Greek gods, although they are a sometimes wrathful and sometimes benevolent bunch. Rivers and streams, the lifeblood of the world, are silently enhancing our lives.

Mismanagement of these bountiful resources could spell certain doom, so we must be careful shepherds of these resources. Since June is national Rivers month, Wayne Castonguay, the newly elected director of the Ipswich River Foundation, wants people to be more aware of everything that our local rivers do for us, especially the Ipswich which takes a major trip through Wilmington.

According to Castonguay, rivers serve many purposes, not all of which are readily apparent to those who live near the "Lifeblood of our country." For instance, rivers provide constant and dependable source of drinking water for communities, so long as they are well maintained. Through these waterways, many animals breed and migrate, creating an intricate watery maze that links creatures' seasonal habitats and their breeding grounds. They are the primary ecological resource for flora and fauna of all shapes and sizes, and also can be excellent resources for recreation and community building, says Castonguay.

The Ipswich River "sustains northern Middlesex and Essex counties" said Castonguay, providing 330,000 people with drinking water everyday. A vast amount of protected land surrounds the river, providing people with areas to hike, canoe, kayak, or enjoy other related activities. It is a refuge for wildlife of all kinds as well. The Ipswich River, a relatively small river by comparison to other regional waterways, does a disproportionate amount of good for its small stature, like a liquid Napoleon, says Castonguay.

As rivers go, the Ipswich remains one of the cleanest. The parts of the river near the headwaters, which begin in Wilmington, is more polluted than the parts downstream as it is naturally diluted by the path of the water. Storm water, or runoff into rivers from storms and rain, is a major source of contamination, but as the river flows into the placid towns of Essex country, the river is cleansed to near purity, says Castonguay. The state's most polluted rivers, the Millers, Blackstone, and Housatonic, are significantly filthier than the Ipswich, while the state's cleanest river, the Deerfield, is somewhat cleaner than the Ipswich.

The two biggest threats facing rivers are pollution and water withdrawal. Castonguay urges people to cut back on the use of water—even ten percent could eliminate the problem of water withdrawal entirely—and to utilize organic practices to maintain their lawns. Castonguay encourages Wilmington residents to get out and enjoy the rivers during river month. "There is no better time than June to visit a river!"

Editor's Note: Mr Castonguay will be the guest speaker at the Wilmington Kiwanis Club on Monday July 8. Anyone wishing to meet him is invited to visit the Kiwanis club meeting. Call Stu Neilson at 978-430-1652 or Don Rich at 978-658-5568 to reserve a seat. The club meets at 7 p.m. at Rocco's every Monday.

One More Dentist

Does this sound familiar? Your mouth is a mess. It became this way because, well you just gave up. You have had a number of unpleasant experiences. They range from being lectured, almost scolded for the condition of your teeth, to being hurt in the "chair". You have untreated problems. They don't hurt now and it is easier to "forget about them" than go through the process once again.

I am inviting you to visit me to give it one more chance. We'll talk to you. We'll listen. There's nothing you have that I haven't seen before. Irish Chef to Visit

TEWKSBURY - On Monday, July 1 at 10:30am, Master Chef Brendan Cronin - the only Irish chef to attain the prestigious Swiss culinary title of 'Chef de Cuisine Diplôme', Swiss Master Chef - will take you on a global journey of gastronomic delight by discussing his new book: "Cheffin": From Potatoes to Caviar. Explore his childhood on a small dairy farm in the West of Ireland, to cooking in great hotels in Limerick, Dublin and onward to the beckoning and beautiful Swiss Alps, Africa, and The Far East. Follow Brendan as he pursues his dream of becoming a skilled and accomplished chef while working for some of the best hotels in the world. Along the way, Cronin describes the hospitality industry like the true professional he is, telling his story with passion, humor, and Irish wit - making us so hungry you will want to stop mid-chapter to try the many recipes included in this book. Cronin's entertaining and informative narrative includes sweeping descriptions of local culture, geography, punctuated with captivating and often hilarious anecdotes of the multi-cultural kitchens and individuals with whom he worked. His eloquent stories of the many high-profile chefs and guests he met while working in the great 5-star hotels of the world, keeps us turning page-after-page leading to a surprising end. "Cheffin" provides us with tremendous insight to luxury hotels, the guests who stay in them, and the exceptional people who make it all happen, as well as fascinating behind-the-scenes descriptions of what it takes to become a professional chef in the intensely competitive and fast-paced environment of the international hospitality industry.

Brendan Cronin, a native of Ireland, is a graduate of City and Guilds Institute of London. He has worked for major international hotel companies in Ireland, Switzerland, Africa, Thailand, Macao, Malaysia and Singapore. He has contributed to many hospitality textbooks, especially in the translation field and completed the translation of "Précis de Cuisine" from French to English for the Swiss food company, Nestlé. He is a member of The American Culinary Federation (ACF), The Council on Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Education (CHRIE) and the Massachusetts Restaurant Association (MRA). He has a Master of Business Administration from Endicott College, Beverly, Massachusetts, where he teaches Event Management, Culinary Arts, International Hospitality Management, Internship Seminars, and Hospitality Entrepreneurship. He serves on several committees on campus and is the chapter advisor for Eta Sigma Delta, the International Hospitality Management Honor Society. "Cheffin" is his first book.

Register by calling 978-640-4490 x 205 or emailing rhayes@mvlc.org. Seating is limited to 50. Talk is free and open to all. Book sale and signing after talk for anyone interested. Sponsored by the Friends of the Library. Complimentary coffee will be served. The library is located at 800 Chandler Street, Tewksbury, on the corner of Chandler St. and Main St.

Over 25 years in business

Friends and family gathered for Scott Fitzgerald's homecoming on Friday afternoon in Wilmington. Fitzgerald, a recruiter for the Boston Bruins, was severely injured in a car accident in March and finally came home Friday. (photo by Maureen Brady-www.shootingstarspix.com)

Our guide for Fun on the Fourth

Champoux was thanking Garratt for his efforts, he noted he was relieved to hear the selectmen didn't have to participate in a dunk tank this year. But, after each selectman offered their words of support, Scott said he brought them red, white, and blue towels (which he handed out) because they WERE in fact doing a dunk tank. Organizers had kept Selectman Cimaglia off the email planning that so it was a surprise!

Starting on Tuesday, July 2nd, there are many games, contest, and plenty of food to go around. Starting at 6 o'clock, barbeque chicken, pork ribs, potato salad, baked beans, cookie, and lemonade are sold for only $8. There are horse-shoes in the first round, whiffle ball for those 14 and under, ladies 2-mile walk, limbo contest, and of course, freeze dance! The Mike Tebo Band will perform from 6:30 until 9:30.

On Wednesday, horseshoes run their final round, whiffle ball over 15, road race, and blueberry pie-eating contest all happen, yum! The 4EverFab Band will perform from 6:30 to 9:30. Don't forget those delicious treats with chicken parmesan, ziti, salad, and drink for only $8.

Thursday brings Uncle Sam's birthday extravaganza. Local Heroes will host a healthy breakfast of eggs, bacon, corn, military SOS (chipped beef), juice, hash browns, and coffee. The Wilmington Community Fund offers lunch, while the Knights of Columbus hosts dinner. The band performing Thursday is Keep it Real. Family Night Fireworks at 9 pm finish the evening spectacular.

Of course, everyone wants to view the fireworks. However, there are a few tips that everyone should know before entering the commons. Every year, it is a fact that the number one viewing spot is the Town Common. What some people may not know is that the number one rule is to be early. Yet, there are so many other activities going on, it's easy to lose track of time. That is why shuttle busses are provided. See the Town Crier special section for more details on the bus schedules and be sure to plan ahead for this popular day.

Garratt encourages residents to visit funonthefourth.com and pay special attention to the satellite parking areas that are listed there as well.

Friday has pickle ball tournament, musical chairs, the famous hospital bed race, and the band performing is the Wildfire. That evening the Sons of Italy hosts a hearty dinner for only $8, which includes chicken potpie, corn on the cob, salad, and a beverage.

Saturday the Knights of Columbus hosts breakfast, the Chamber of Commerce offers lunch, and Kiwanis Club wraps up the week with dinner. Performance by the Windham Community Band happens as well as raffle ticket drawing. At 9:30 pm are the spectacular fireworks (rain date is July 7th). Sunday morning the Wilmington Minutemen breakfast closes out the events for just $5 including pancakes, sausages, orange juice, milk, coffee and black powder for courage.

Some people may ask why the Fun on the Fourth is so successful. Others know that answer. Wilmington's citizens and surrounding counties want this year (as well as past years) to be a fantastic affair for all members of the family.

Best place to raise kids

"That's what made it so high on this list," he said. Town Manager Jeff Hull wasn't surprised. "Well, it certainly confirms what many of us know: that Wilmington is a great place to raise a family," he said. "People get a lot for our dollar in Wilmington."

Boston Magazine also gave Wilmington high marks in its "Top Spots to Live" list. "It is striking to me that... multiple independent sources have identified Wilmington...as a place that is affordable and provides services," he said. "It's not by accident. Wilmington seems to be on the radar."

Hull said that the "good news" certainly "affirms" what the town has been doing. And they'll continue. "We're going to continue" to provide "quality services for a reasonable price," he said.

Selectman Mike Newhouse agreed. "I think Wilmington tries to be a town of all ages. But, certainly, we have a lot to offer kids in terms of education and recreation activities," he said "I think it's just great for the town to be recognized."

He also praised Wilmington's "sense of volunteerism."

"Certainly, this kind of recognition speaks to that," he said.

According to Anderson, Nordwaller's mission is to help consumers make better decisions with their wallet. This includes real estate. In the company's analysis, it considered Public school rating, Average home value, Ongoing cost of homeownership, Average income, and Economic growth.

Wilmington came in second to Longmeadow and was followed by Winchester, Lexington, Brookline, Needham, Somerset, and Milton. The study cited Wilmington's rich history, the week-long Four of July celebration, summer concert series, and the new construction of Wilmington High School as factors in its description of (what we already know) one of the best places to live.

Wilmington woman indicted

"We allege that this defendant used her position as a banker to garner trust from friends and family, and then pushed fake investment opportunities that promised high rates of interest," AG Coakley said. "Once this scheme began to unravel, we allege that she began to steal from customers in order to fund withdrawals from investors and cover her illegal activity."

The AG's Office began an investigation in November 2011 after the matter was referred by Bank of America during its initial internal investigation. Patterson worked as a personal banker at a bank branch in Reading, which was initially Bank of Boston, and later became Fleet Bank and then Bank of America. Authorities allege that between July 1999 and September 2011, Patterson made approximately $6 million in fraudulent transactions involving 31 investors and customers.

At the beginning of the scheme, Patterson allegedly persuaded family and friends to invest their money in accounts that she characterized as offering high interest rates, normally between 10 and 15 percent. Authorities allege that she regularly portrayed these accounts as being exclusively for high-level investors and corporations, but said that due to her position at the bank, she was able to set up these accounts for family and friends.

The investigation allegedly revealed that Patterson convinced 15 family members and friends to invest nearly $4.5 million as a part of this scheme, and that she issued fake certificate of deposit receipts and Form 1099s on bank forms to make the investments appear legitimate. Authorities allege that, in a number of instances, Patterson set up accounts in the investors' names without their knowledge, put her own address on the accounts, deposited the investors' funds, and used the money both to fund payments to other investors and to funnel money into her personal accounts.

Further investigation allegedly revealed that beginning in 2009, Patterson began stealing money from the accounts of customers, many of them elderly, in order to conceal her previous theft from investors. Authorities allege that Patterson stole almost $1.5 million from 16 different customers by forging signatures on withdrawal slips. She allegedly used approximately $400,000 of this amount to repay customers stolen from earlier in the scheme and the majority of the balance of that stolen money to fund "interest payments" and other payments to the investors.

In the end, investigators uncovered a total of approximately $6 million in alleged fraudulent transactions. Patterson made payments back to customers and investors of almost $3.8 million, leaving the total alleged net theft at more than $2.1 million.

She is scheduled to be arraigned in Middlesex Superior Court at a later date.

The Attorney General's office reminds readers that these charges are allegations, and the defendant is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Markey Wins

But not in Wilmington or Tewksbury

Richard Heros, who represented the 12 Visions Party. He received 13 votes in Wilmington and 31 in Tewksbury.

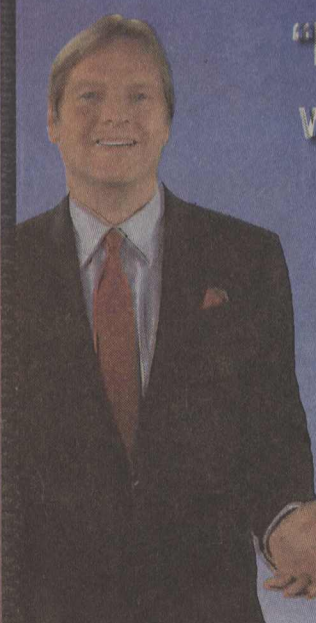

Both towns had 14 write-ins.

Turnout was relatively low. In Tewksbury, 5,452 people cast votes, which is about 26.1 percent of registered voters. Wilmington saw 4,410 ballots cast representing 28.2 percent of registered voters.

Gomez had been trailing in most polls during the election. The latest one, which was conducted by Suffolk University, had him at forty-two percent. Markey had fifty-two.

The election holds with the relatively conservative voting record of residents in both towns for certain state and national elections.

WILMINGTON KIWANIS

SUNDAY

July 2nd - 7th • Wilmington Town Common

PRESENTED BY THE
KIWANIS CLUB OF WILMINGTON FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE SUPPLEMENT TO THE TOWN CRIER

KIWANIS CLUB of WILMINGTON

Welcome to the 2013 Wilmington Fourth of July Celebration.

WOW! Another year has arrived and once again it time for time for Fourth of July Celebration on Wilmington Common. Your Kiwanis Club of Wilmington has prepared this supplement to give everyone a schedule of the week's events. This Supplement has been made possible through the generosity of our advertisers and volunteers. During these difficult economic times, people are still willing to donate to worthy causes. When you get a chance please support our advertisers who support us that make this supplement happen.

During this administrative year of the Kiwanis Club the club has had another successful year with the addition of several new members and the purchase of new equipment to enable us to expand on our ability to serve the community.

The following is a list of programs that we support:

LOCALLY:

- Scholarships for graduating high school seniors
- Senior BBQ in May
- Senior Center Christmas Dinner including serving shut-ins
- Adopt-A-Family Christmas Program
- Various youth sport groups
- Boston Med-Flight
- Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute located at Tufts Medical Center, Boston
- The Kiwanis Playground at Silver Lake
- Various projects with Wilmington school system
- Fourth of July Committee and many other projects around the Town of Wilmington.

AROUND THE WORLD

Kiwanis International's annual projects. eg: The Eliminate Project to eliminate maternal / neonatal tetanus worldwide. This deadly disease steals the lives of nearly 60,000 innocent babies and a significant number of women each year.

And the IDD Project with its goal of eliminating iodine deficiency worldwide. Working with the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) and the U.S. Fund for UNICEF, the entire Kiwanis family joined together to raise funds to help eliminate the problem of iodine deficiency by supporting salt iodization, testing and monitoring, and community outreach and education.

On behalf of the members of the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to The Town of Wilmington and volunteers who have helped make this year a success. And we are not finished.

We are looking for new members to make our club stronger. For those of you that are not members yet, but are considering joining, we meet at Rocco's Restaurant every Monday night at 7 p.m. Feel free to join us for dinner, as our guest, and find out more about this great group. So stop by and meet your hometown Kiwanis Club! We will be on the Common every night of the Fourth Celebration, either we will be under the yellow and blue tent next to the gazebo on Wilmington Common.

We meet at Rocco's Restaurant every Monday evening, except major holidays

Join us and help children world wide and right here in Wilmington

See you on the Common from July 2nd - 6th!

Forty Six years and still going strong!

Recently the club celebrated their 46th birthday. Charter Member Leo Gittzus (seated left) was honored by the club as President Dennis McCarthy cut the cake at a Monday evening meeting at Rocco's.

In 1967 E. Hayward Bliss gathered a group of his 25 closest friends and formed the club, obtaining a charter from Kiwanis International. The club has been serving the children and senior citizens of Wilmington and the World since.

Every year the Kiwanis Club has served a dinner on the 4th of July on the Town Common. (In 1981 the town joined in with their Fun on the Fourth).

Have you been to the Town Beach on Silver Lake? Have your children played on the swings and slides and other equipment at the playground? The Kiwanis Club built that for you.

Club members have participated in many events through the years including Town wide clean-up; re-building the health center fitness course, senior citizen leaf clean-up, provided scholarships to Wilmington High and Shawsheen Tech students, supported Boy Scouts, Little League, Camp 40 Acres, the Summer Reading Program, Toys for Tots, the Wilmington Recreation Dept Horribles Parade and Easter Egg Hunt, Adopt - a - Kid and programs at the Town Museum / Harnden Tavern. They also provide a holiday dinner and a spring BBQ for the seniors at the Buzzell Drop-In Center and support the Bingo games.

And that's just locally! On a regional and world-wide basis Kiwanis Clubs all over New England and the world combine their power to defeat diseases and prevent and heal pediatric trauma. Right here in Boston is the first Pediatric Trauma Institute at the Tufts New England Medical Center.

The helmet must fit right.

The Kiwanis Club of Wilmington has been advocating bike safety since the early 90's. Over the years thousands of Wilmington children have passed through the Bike Safety Rodeo and learned how to ride safely. Here, Marcia Olsen adjusted a helmet for the proper fit on a young lady. A helmet that falls off will not protect the child.

Grill 'Em!

The Kiwanis Club was providing the refreshments as kids from Wilmington raised money for Cancer at the PanMass Kids Bike Ride Challenge on Sunday morning May 19th at the Boutwell School On May 19th.

Farm Division Jamboree a major hit

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

The sun was scalding hot as the Wilmington Little League Farm Division Jamboree got underway, yet that didn't deter any of the youngsters from enjoying a day of baseball.

Created by the League's Board in an effort to give the players for the younger leagues something to look forward to, as these leagues do not have any sort of playoffs or post-season waiting for them, the Jamboree consisted of a series of three-inning games played at Rotary Park. As a bonus treat, the players were announced at the start of the game and then individually at each at-bat by loudspeakers.

The first game of the day was between the A's and Blue Jays, with the visiting Blue Jays getting first ups. The team was led off by Patrick Stokes.

Farm league games involve the coaches working with the players as needed, as pitchers, as catchers, as well as all their normal duties as coaches. While the game got underway and the batters took practice swings, the coaches could be seen guiding players around the field until they had reached the right position.

Throughout the games, the coaches would also call to players to correct thing in stances, positioning, or even just trying to boost moral as the sweltering heat continued to blare down with pressure.

Owen Cushing was first at bat for the A's, and he set the pace for the team by crushing the ball into left field. Cushing went on to score, tying the game at 1-1. The A's went on to take the lead, putting up another three runs before inning's end, for a score of 4-1.

The A's stayed ahead for the remainder of the game, though the Blue Jays put up a strong effort and closed the gap. Despite this strong opposition, the A's still managed to pull out a victory.

Next up was a match between the Astros and the Angels. Weinstein led off the Angels with a single. Weinstein went on to score, thanks to Dillon Bloom slamming the ball into left field for a double.

The Astros started off with a major deficit, as several members of the team did not arrive. To make up for this, the Astros bench and field was filled with several players from a variety of teams.

Leading off for the Astros was Own Cushing, who crushed the ball into center field and slid into second for a double. A single by Shane Costello, drove Cushing home, putting the Astros on the scoreboard.

Perhaps the most impressive feature of the game was that, even with the blinding heat and oppressive humidity, the players still applauded and cheered one another from the dugout.

The loudspeakers played music between innings, at one point conjuring up 'Sweet Caroline'.

Sure enough, a young voice happily sang along with, "So good! So good!"

The Angels would win the game with a final score of 6-3.

The final game of the Jamboree was between the Rangers and the Devil Rays.

The first hit of the game came courtesy of the Rays' Dominic Lombardi, who smacked the ball for a deep line drive into center field.

Lombardi was driven home by a single from AnnaBelle Cook. Cook stood out with her bright pink batting helmet, and her pigtail bopping up and down behind her as she ran.

The Rays would score an additional two runs before being put down for the inning.

The Rangers were led off by Jack Spencer. Spencer got the team off on an aggressive foot, pounding the ball into deep center field. Another big hit to center field, this one courtesy of Mason Glover, would send Spencer home and put the Rangers on the board.

Throughout the entire Jamboree, the announcers worked hard to give the players a positive and lively experience. A young announced would comment on the action of the game, saying things like "Great catch!" or "Nice hit!" Sometimes, the announcers would resort to bellowing "Who!" after each player's name, just for that extra bit of entertainment.

The Rangers pulled ahead

in the first inning and remained in the lead for the remainder of the game. As the sun finally dipped behind the trees and the cool air of the evening replaced the burning heat of the day, Rual Bornstein snagged a flying line drive to secure his team's victory.

A's player Jacob Roque gets into home safely, as the Blue Jays throw goes wide of catcher Brett Ebert during this weekend's Little League Jamboree held at Rotary Park.

Single A Division showcases some great ballplayers

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

The sun was warm and the breeze was cool on Saturday, as the Pirates and Blue Jays took the field for the first game of the Wilmington Little League's Single A Showcase played at Rotary Park.

The Single A Showcase, as well as the next day's Farm and Rookie League Jamboree, was instituted in the past few years as a means to reward the younger players whose leagues do not come with any sort of play-offs or post-season.

The Little League Board of Directors decided to create a day of three-inning length games, allowing every team a chance to play on the field at Rotary, with their names being announced at the beginning of the game and during each at-bat.

"It's a great day," said League President Rick Hill.

The Blue Jays were the first team up at bat, led off by Joe Marino. Marino was struck by the very first pitch of the game.

The Pirates took control of the game in the second inning, and the game would end with a final score of 10-1.

The loudspeakers blasted music between innings, putting the crowd and players at ease as the sounds of 'Hey Jude' and 'Spirit in the Sky' rolled over the baseball field.

The head of the division, Ed McGrath, spent most of his days beneath the tent with the speakers, calling out the names of each player.

"What we try to do is have an event for our Single A players," McGrath explained. "It's kind of their send-off/play off event on the big field."

The next game of the day was a head-to-head of the Angels and the Royals. As the away team, the Angels had first up, led off by Nick Benson.

Both teams displayed strong hitting and fielding, with both teams also displaying exemplary pitching. The game went back and forth, with neither team able to get on the scoreboard.

Finally, in the final inning, Benson managed to get to second and was driven home by a sacrifice single, clinching the game for the Angels. He was met by his teammates, who surged out of the dugout to cheer and celebrate.

The day stayed warm and pleasant, never tipping over into unpleasant mugginess. Dogs and kids chased each other around the Rotary Park playground and near the banks of the pond. After each game, the young players rushed to the Snack Shack to grab their complimentary ice cream sandwiches. Meanwhile league officials diligently raked and re-lined the field so that the next games could immediately begin.

No sooner had one team vacated their dug outs, then another team had hurried in and begun to prepare. This excitement was exactly the kind of thing that McGrath and the other Board members were hoping to foster with this event.

"We were just trying to find a thing for the younger kids that would be an exciting thing for them to send them off into their summer," McGrath said.

The next game was between the Devil Rays and the Giants, with the Giants led off by Ryan Ackerly. Ackerly gave the ball a solid whack, only to see it snagged by a great catch by the Rays' outfielder. Indeed, the entire Rays team showed very strong defensive awareness, with a great sense of strategy and positioning.

But the Giants were able to score two runs, and while the Rays did get on the board in the second inning, it was not enough to pull out a victory. The final score of the game was 2-1, Giants.

The Rays would get another chance at victory, as the last game of the day was between them and the Phillies.

"I think they get a little bit more excited playing here," said McGrath. "I think it's the thrill of the announcement and then getting to play on this field that is the excitement for them."

The Phillies were first up at bat, led off by AJ Lavigne, who was thrown out at first.

The Phillies took an early lead, thanks to a single by Steve O'Connor which drove in two runs. By the end of the top of the first inning, the Phillies were ahead, 4-0.

Though they were done, and had already played a game, the Rays were as excitable as they had been at the beginning of their first game, chanting and cheering for each of their teammates who got up to bat.

While the Rays could not overcome the deficit and ended up losing that game, there was still a palpable sense of excitement and joy coming from the players as they got to hear the names boom out over the loudspeakers over Rotary Park.

Irizarry brings home more medals

For the fifth straight year, Wilmington resident Frankie Irizarry participated in the USA Track and Field New England Championships and for the first time, he brought home three medals from the competition.

Irizarry placed third in the 100-meter hurdles and the 200-meter hurdles as well as second place in the triple jump. This was only his second time doing the 100 hurdles and triple jump as well as his first time doing the 200 hurdles. The meet was held this past weekend at Fitchburg State University and was attended by a record number of athletes from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont.

USATF age groups are based on an athlete's age on December 31 of that year so even though Irizarry is only 12, he still has to compete with 13 and 14-year-old athletes in the Youth Division because of his November 21st birthday.

As one of the youngest competitors in the youth division, Irizarry still came home tied for the meet best with three medals in the competition.

Irizarry began his day racing a full field in the 200 meter intermediate hurdles. He ran 34.9 seconds to finish third in the event, missing out on second place by .4 seconds. After a short break, Irizarry returned to the starting line for his place in the 100 meter high hurdles.

After a slow start, Irizarry picked up steam finishing in a personal best time of 20.24 seconds to take third place behind two fourteen year old competitors.

Irizarry's last event of the day was the triple jump, an event he just started doing this spring. On his last jump of the competition, Irizarry jumped 27'10" to secure second place in the competition.

Next up for Irizarry will be a trip to New York City and famed ICAHN Stadium for the Region I Junior Olympic qualifying meet on July 7. Region I consists of the above mentioned New England states plus Maine, Connecticut and New York State. It is one of 16 regions that comprise the USATF.

Dating back to the 1960's, the USATF Junior Olympic program has been the most visible youth athlete developmental program in the world. Nearly 70,000 youth athletes compete each year in the Junior Olympic Track & Field and Cross Country programs. Many of America's Olympic hopefuls competing for a spot on the London 2012 team began as youth athletes, including stars such as Jeremy Wariner, Allyson Felix, Bryan Clay, and Sanya Richards-Ross.

The 2013 USATF Junior Olympics will be held from July 22 through July 28 in Greensboro, North Carolina on the campus of North Carolina A&T. This will be the second time that the Junior Olympics have been held in the Tar Heel state in the last five years.

Irizarry has been competing in Track and Field for the past five seasons. After three seasons with the Amherst Track Club in Amherst, New Hampshire, Irizarry switched to youth track powerhouse, the Waltham Track Club. Irizarry looks forward to going to the return of the Wilmington Middle School track program next year and getting to compete for the Wilmington Middle School track and field team.

Under 14 Girls Soccer team earn Middlesex League title

Wilmington Youth Soccer's Seventh grade Girls Division 2, U14 team, were crowned Middlesex League Champions this past weekend at the League's annual "Commissioner's Cup."

The girls were the third of four seeded teams in the tournament, based on their successful regular season record. At the Cup, they played two talented opponents.

In their first game on Saturday, they defeated Malden's No. 1 girls team 4-0, based on an excellent ground game where they exercised composure and patience, and were able to dominate possession of the ball.

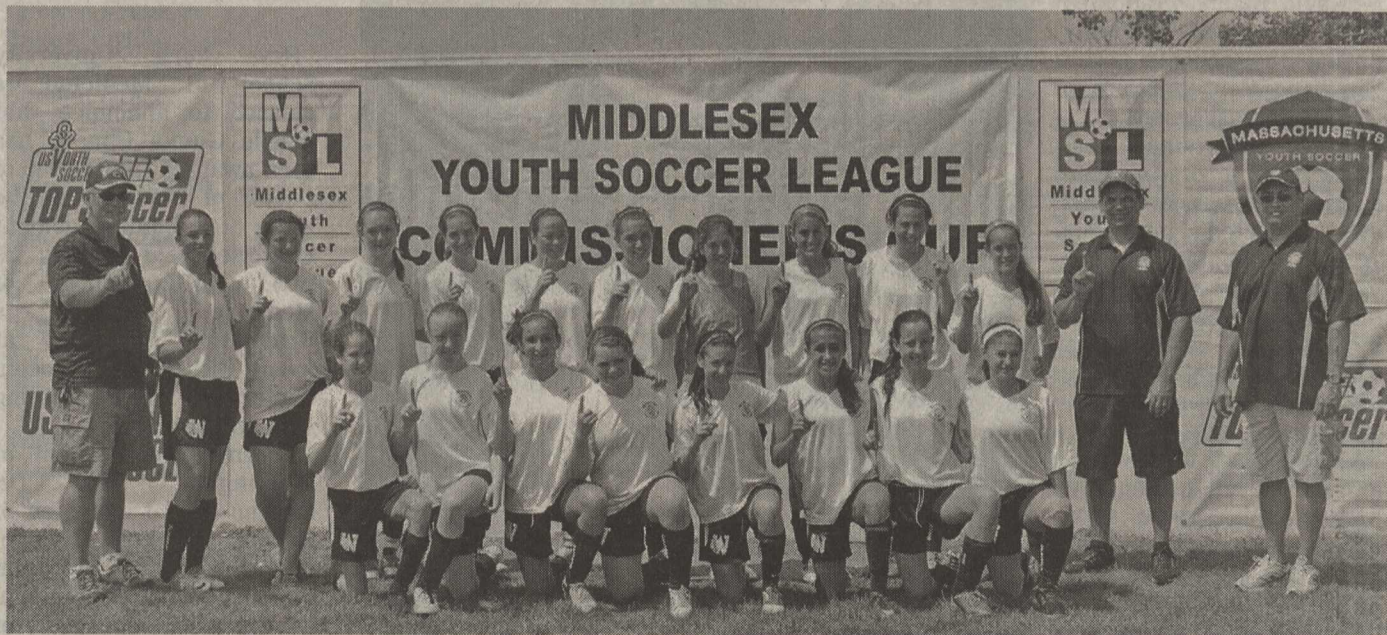

Coupled with excellent transition from offense to defense while only allowing five shots on goal, and doubling that output with over ten scoring chances against Malden, the girls were able to successfully convert four goals off of Jill Roche, Bella Granara, Olivia Wingate, and Liz Gordon's efforts.

On Sunday, in the final championship game, the girls faced a motivated and physical Tewksbury team. The game was hard fought, with heavy pressure applied by both teams throughout this intense and fast-paced game.

The difference was Wilmington's early goal in the first half by Olivia Wingate, off a corner kick opportunity. By maintaining possession, and applying attacking pressure with multiple through balls against Tewksbury's back line, Wilmington kept their opponent off-balance, enough, to have the deciding score of 1-0 hold up.

The U14 girls are now onto the State Championship Tournament that begins on Friday, June 28th!

The GU14-1 Wilmington Wildcats won the Division I Commissioners Cup over the weekend. This qualified them to participate in the MTOC State Championship for the second straight year. It was a total team effort by every player on the team. In the Championship game, they rallied from a 1-0 half time deficit to get the 3-1 win. Top row from left to right: Julianna Iocco, Olivia O'Regan, Sara Bray, Katherine Rogomentich, Kylie McGilvray, Julianna Mastroilli, Madison Knibbs, Daria Bakhtiari, Christina Woods, Cecilia Chase. Eighteen Wilmington soccer teams participate in ML Commissioner's Cup

This past weekend of June 22nd, 18 Wilmington Youth Soccer teams participated in the Middlesex Youth Soccer League's "Commissioner's Cup" tournament.

This year's tournament was held in Woburn at the Joyce Fields complex, under hot and sunny skies. The Commissioner Cup tournament recognizes excellence in play amongst the twenty town programs in the Middlesex Youth Soccer League, and allows for select teams across all U10 through U18 boys and girls age groups to play in a 'playoff format,' for bragging rights as to the best team within each age group and division in the League.

In addition, the Commissioner's Cup provides an opportunity for select U12 and above aged teams to represent the Middlesex League and play in the state's Massachusetts Tournament of Champions (MTOC), for the privilege to be crowned State Champions. This year, the 2013 MTOC will be held this upcoming weekend of June 28th-30th at the Massachusetts Youth Soccer Fields at Progin Park, in Lancaster, MA.

Wilmington is fortunate to have three teams vying for a state title, including the GU14-2 Division 2 team, the BU16-1 Division 1 boys team, and last year's state champions, currently the GU14-1 Division 1 team.

Information on the Wilmington teams participating at MTOC can be found on the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association website, at www.wilmingtonyouthsoccer.org.

Blanch graduates from Lawrence Academy

Tewksbury resident McKayla Blanch graduated from Lawrence Academy during the school's 220th commencement exercises in Groton, Massachusetts.

Blanch maintained academic high honors throughout her four-year career and was inducted into the school's chapter of the National Cum Laude Society this spring. Her classes included AP English and AP Environmental Science courses, as well as an honors class in Latin 4.

A three-sport varsity athlete, she played field hockey, hockey, and lacrosse, serving as a captain on each team this past year. Her hockey team competed in the NEPSAC finals in her freshman and junior years, and her play for the Spartans' field hockey team earned her the team's MVP title and honorable mention from the Independent School League as a junior and All-ISL honors as a senior.

Blanch made an appearance on the school stage in the cast of Mr. Big during the 2011 student-directed one-act play series, and her poetry was published this spring in the student literary magazine, Consortium. She participated in LA's Walk for Hunger efforts, and she served the school community this year as a proctor in her dormitory.

During her Winterimms, two-week experiential learning sessions that take place every March, she assisted in classrooms of underprivileged preschool children for a local Head Start program; studied the art of digital photography; and designed and created an original quilt. This spring, she camped and kayaked in Panama's San Blas archipelago, studying the coral reef ecosystems and learning about the indigenous Kuna culture.

The daughter of Carol and Lawrence Blanch of Tewksbury, McKayla will attend Colby College in the fall, where she will play field hockey for the Mules.

At NYU School of Medicine Dr. Cimeno received accolades for her academic, community, and research work. She was awarded honors in her clerkships, and was coauthor on several published research articles on breast cancer.

Dr. Cimeno will assume the position of Surgical Resident at the University of Maryland Medical Center in Baltimore, MD. UMMC is highly ranked as one of the leading teaching and research institutions in the United States. In addition to its extensive surgical and medical facilities, UMMC is well known for its active transplant program and trauma services, two areas of particular interest to Dr. Cimeno.

The prestigious R. Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center (STC) at UMMC is the nation's first and only integrated trauma hospital and serves as a model for trauma centers worldwide. It is credited with advancing the "Golden Hour" theory, based on the importance of speed as well as skill in operating procedures.

Patients with the most critical and complicated injuries are referred to the STC from across the country. The Shock Trauma Center works in collaboration with all branches of the military, the National Study Center, and the Johns Hopkins school of Public Health to develop innovative treatment modalities and public policy initiatives.

Pino to travel for Lacrosse Games

Beginning Friday, June 28, Tewksbury native Michael Pino, a sophomore at Lasell College, and son of Arthur & Sharon Pino will join a special group of lacrosse players representing the HEADstrong Foundation™ in Amsterdam, Netherlands to compete at the Amsterdam Lowlands Lacrosse Games from June 28th-30th.

The HEADstrong National Team consists of players from seven states including Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania representing 20 colleges and universities. The team is being led by HEADstrong Illinois Head Coach Tim Duffy, former UVA All-American and National Champion Matt Kelly and Kevin Finneran. And while the team has their sites on the European championship, they also hope to share the HEADstrong mission and pass blood cancer awareness with players from across the Atlantic.

Pino and his teammates will be heading to Amsterdam hoping to carry on the legacy and vision of HEADstrong founder Nicholas E. Colleluori through advocating, fundraising and supporting those affected by blood cancers and those working towards eliminating it.

Colleluori a former lacrosse player at Hofstra University, who passed away on November 28, 2006 at just 21 years of age after a lengthy battle with non-Hodgkins lymphoma, started the HEADstrong Foundation while he was still fighting for his life and at his request, his mother Cheryl Colleluori took over the foundation upon his passing.

The HEADstrong Foundation is committed to being a resource for blood cancer patients and their families, dedicated to assisting them in navigating the harrowing ordeal of cancer by sharing their experience, lending guidance and providing essential services with emphasis placed on sustaining and improving quality of life during the process.

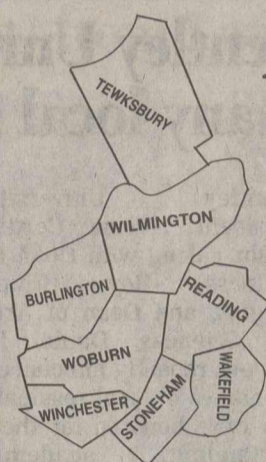

Serving as ambassadors of the HEADstrong Foundation™ Pino and his teammates will play in lime green uniforms, which serves as the awareness color for non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma. The team will also distribute awareness bracelets and helmet decals to their opponents after each game. Additionally, members of the team will also have the opportunity to tour the city and experience firsthand the culture of the Netherlands.

Coach Duffy is proud to lead this talented and dedicated group of players to Amsterdam.

"We are really looking forward to sharing this incredible opportunity with our players. We have put together a roster of not only talented lacrosse players but genuine young men that we believe best represent the HEADstrong Foundation," Duffy said.

"Our hope is to provide our players with a lacrosse experience of a lifetime. We are looking forward to sharing Nick's story and the HEADstrong mission with players from Europe. It is so special to have several of our players who have come up through the HEADstrong Lacrosse Club and have witnessed firsthand the impact that the organization has in the blood cancer community."

Cheryl Colleluori, the HEADstrong President, and Nick's mother, is very appreciative of the efforts of Pino and all the other players and coaches.

FUN ON THE 4th in Wilmington

By RYAN LAROCHE

For those who've attended the Wilmington Fourth of July festivities in the past 32 years (or for all 32 years), a change is coming this year. It won't be a popular change, but there's no way around it. The carnival is, for at least one year, gone.

Since it's held in the high school parking lot, and due to the high school project the parking lot is unavailable, the carnival won't be held this year. The Fun on the Fourth Committee petitioned the Zoning Board of Appeals to move the carnival to a nearby site, but were rejected with three votes for and two votes against. The ZBA cited safety concerns.

Although the six day celebration, which begins on Tuesday, July 2, has many draws, the carnival helped bring in money to support the next year's events. Without it (and without an additional funding source), chairman Scott Garrant said that the festivities next year may not be as grand.

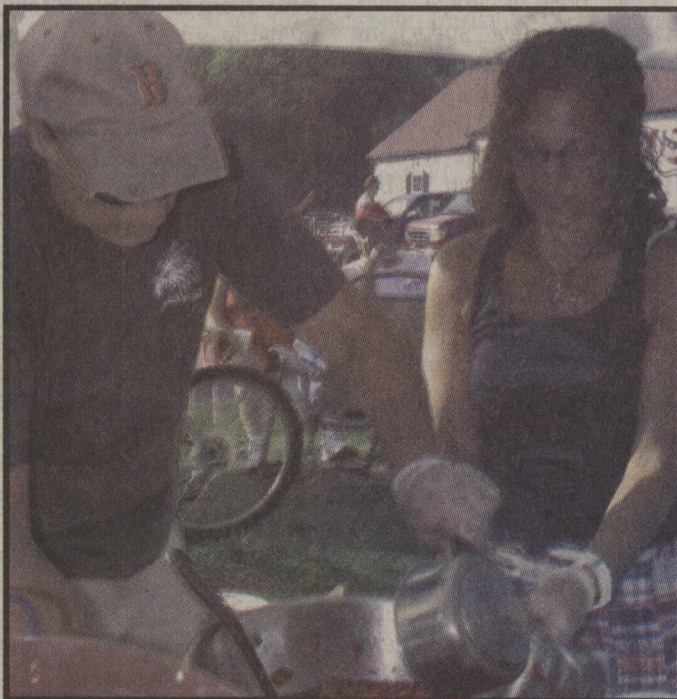

"I'm disappointed the carnival won't be here this year," he said. "We raise a great deal of money through the carnival."

All is not lost, however. The celebration that started back in 1981 on the town's 250th anniversary will still go on.

Planning for such an event takes almost an entire year. In fact, Garrant said the committee works from September - June. And it's not cheap, either. He said that the cost is $50-$55,000 to run the six-day event. The carnival offsets some of that cost, but the committee also has help from local businesses and fundraising efforts including a raffle.

Some of the business and organizations that have donated include the American Red Cross, Analog Devices, Arrow Paper Corporation, Crown Coffee, D&D Lock, Dunkin' Donuts, Designs By Don, Fiesta Shows, GCG Associates, Jeff Stone Trucking, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis Club, Market Basket, Minutemen, MOM'S Club of Wilmington, Reading Co-Operative Bank, Rockingham Silk Screen, Rotary Club, The Savings Bank, Sons of Italy, Stoneham Savings Bank, Wilmington Chamber of Commerce,

WHAT SAYS "FOURTH OF JULY" more than the local Chamber of Commerce serving Strawberry Shortcake! Bob and Nancy Vallee served up the iconic New England treat last year. This year look for them on Wilmington Town Common on Saturday from 3 p.m. til they're all gone! (photo by Maureen Brady-www.shootingstarspix.com)

Wilmington DPW, Wilmington Department of Public Buildings, Wilmington Fire Department, Wilmington High School Cheerleaders, Wilmington Police Department, and Wilmington Public Schools.

Fundraising organizations include Abundant - Life Church, Boy Scout Troop 56 and 136, Congregational Church, Cub Scout Pack 361 and 56, Lions Club, Saint Elizabeth's Chapel, Saint Thomas Church, Sons of Italy, Sons of Italy Junior Lodge, Wilmington High School DECA, Wilmington Pop Warner, Wilmington United Methodist Church, and Wilmington Youth Hockey.

Beside the carnival, the fireworks displays (on both the Fourth of July and July 6) are big (and expensive) draws. A rain date for the July 6 fireworks, scheduled for 9:30 p.m., is Sunday, July 7. If the Fourth of July fireworks, scheduled for 9 p.m., get rained out, they would then be combined with the July 6 fireworks show. Garrant said they've never been rained out and he hopes to never be.

With the Wakefield Fourth of July parade, one of the biggest in the state, not taking place this year, those who regularly attend may find themselves wondering what to do. Although Wilmington doesn't have a parade, per se, they do offer many Fourth of July activities.

Fourth of July schedule
7 a.m. - 10 a.m. Local Heroes Breakfast
9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Travel'n DJ Sounds

James D. Julia Auctioneers Extraordinary collection of Revolutionary War era church silver from Woburn to be sold

James D. Julia, Inc., one of the nation's top ten antique auction houses, is proud to present this grouping in association with the company's annual summer Antique, Asian, and Fine Art auction event to be held August 21-23, 2013. Collections of centuries old, fully documented church silver such as this one rarely appear at auction. Thus, these vessels are certain to be of great interest to silver, theology, and early American history enthusiasts, collectors, and museums. The collection, acquired through Julia's Woburn, Massachusetts office, again demonstrates the company's leadership across the greater New England region.

The First Congregational Church of Woburn, Massachusetts Silver Collection

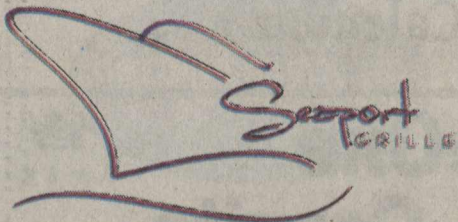

This collection is a "who's who" time capsule of eighteenth century Boston area silversmiths. The eight antique silver pieces - two loving cups and six beakers - are in excellent original and untouched condition with only the slightest imperfections resulting from age. Each item is inscribed; all but two have maker's marks. The loving cups are 5 1/8" and 7 1/4" tall. The smaller one is by George Hanners, Sr. and is engraved "The Gift of Coll. Eleazer Flegg to the Church in Woburn 1726" and the bigger one is by J. Jones and is engraved "The Gift of Joseph Lawrence Esqr To the first Church of Christ in Woburn 1882". The four marked beakers range in size from 5 3/8" to 6 1/8". The first, by Jacob Hurd, is inscribed "The Gift of N Saltonstall and R Cotton to the first Church of Christ in Woburn". The second, by Josiah Austin, is inscribed "Belonging to the first Church of Christ in Woburn 1769". The third, by Benjamin Burt, is inscribed "The Gift of Mr Isaac Stone; to the first Church of Christ, in Woburn. 1771". And the fourth marked beaker, by John Burt, is inscribed "The Gift of Mr. Roland Cotton to the first Church of Christ in Woburn 1741". The two unmarked beakers are each 5 7/8" tall and inscribed with the identical phrase "The Gift of Mr. Roland Cotton to the Second Church of Christ in Woburn 1740". Each item will carry a conservative estimate in the catalog to encourage a high degree of participation.

Movie Reviews

"Monsters University"

"MONSTERS UNIVERSITY" IS A SWEET FILM. It will make you laugh, but it just doesn't hit the same high notes as the first one did. Despite a few surprises, the ending is predictable.

"MONSTERS UNIVERSITY"
GRADE: ***

"Monsters University" is a sweet film, a sequel that will make you laugh. It just doesn't hit the same high notes as the first one did.

"Monsters University" is set a decade or two earlier, revealing how tall and furry James P. Sullivan (voiced again by John Goodman) meets short and round Mike Wazowski (Billy Crystal) during their freshman year at the school, the most prestigious in the monster world.

From their first day of class in the university's Scaring School, scaring comes easily to Sulley. He doesn't bother bringing a pencil or notebook to class. "You don't need to study scaring," he says. "You just do it."

Mike, meanwhile, has been preparing for college since elementary school. He has studied the philosophies of fright so thoroughly he knows the four key aspects of a roar by heart. Yet when Mike tries to put all this devoted learning into action, he gets more laughs than screams. Sulley's lackadaisical attitude to his own natural gifts drives Mike crazy.

These monster misfits would love to be scare majors, but none was accepted for the program, forcing them to choose from other degree options like designing bedroom doors or building yellow metal containers to store children's screams. But if this group somehow wins the annual Greek scare-off competition, the entire fraternity will be accepted into Scare School.

For Mike and Sulley, the games represent their final opportunity to realize their dreams. But to win the challenges, both feuding monsters must put aside their differences and learn to work together and with the rest of their team.

The heart of the film is Crystal and Goodman, who remain as funny, spunky, and relatable as you remember. Their buddy-buddy chemistry is so natural, the actors could team up for several more Monsters films.

The problem at the center of "Monsters U" is you know too much. Mike and Sulley start out as enemies in this story, but in "Monsters Inc." they are the best of friends. So before "Monsters U" starts, you know how it must end. Despite a few surprising turns in the plot, the conclusion is never in doubt.

Monsters University never rises to the level of Pixar greatness, but it's better than expected. For a Pixar film, that's more than good enough.

"MAN OF STEEL"
GRADE: ****

"Man of Steel" should give DC Comics a much-needed boost as it desperately tries to keep pace with rival Marvel at the box office. Superman's latest revamp, courtesy of "300" director Zack Snyder, helps wash away memories of "Green Lantern" in 2011.

Though Superman's faster than a speeding bullet, "Man of Steel" lags behind Christopher Nolan's Batman trilogy, Joss Whedon's "The Avengers" (2012) and several others (Jon Favreau's "Iron Man" and Tim Burton's "Batman" come to mind) among superhero stories on the big screen.

Superman first appeared in the pages of Action Comics in 1938, so even those who have never touched a comic book likely know Superman's origin by now. Kal-El, the last son of the dying planet Krypton, is shipped off to Earth where his spaceship crashes near the Kansas farm of Jonathan and Martha Kent (Kevin Costner and Diane Lane). The Kents name the boy Clark and raise him as their own, concerned about his powerful abilities but encouraged by his behavior.

When Clark reaches adulthood, he dons the cape and costume of Superman, always striving to protect the citizens of his adopted home-world.

British actor Henry Cavill takes the reigns as the iconic American superhero. "Man of Steel" steers away from amiliar territory, focusing more on Superman's roots.

A nomadic Clark Kent (Cavill) learns about his alien ancestry and discovers an avatar of his father (Russell Crowe as Jor-El) while working on a military project. Daily Planet reporter Lois Lane (Amy Adams) is along for the ride, but exiled Kryptonian soldier General Zod (Michael Shannon) and his violent cohorts are planning a full-blown attack on Earth.

Cavill holds his own in a high-profile role, backed capably by veteran actors Costner, Crowe, Lane and Laurence Fishburne (as Daily Planet editor Perry White). Adams portrays Lois Lane with just the right balance of gumption and grit.

Crowe is terrific as Jor-El, playing the part of a warrior-scientist hybrid.

Adams gives Lois Lane a depth that she lacked in previous outings because, again, she's treated as a real character, rather than a comic-book figure.

Snyder's "Man of Steel" grabs you viscerally, even while delivering emotionally. It could prove to be the best big movie of the summer.

This war was a climax of the passions of the North verse the South that affected families and changed the way America would live even to today, 150 years later. SPEAKING UP (TEWKSBURY)

"Gina Borrazzo had to speak up," notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"Her son, Zack, had spiraled downward, consumed by the abyss of an addiction to heroin. Luckily, he's doing better; he's heading to rehab.

"His story, however, isn't unique. In fact, he's one of the lucky ones.

"According to the CDC, 38,329 people died of drug overdoses in 2010. But Borrazzo argues that this is a topic that is not often discussed - and that's because most people aren't willing to do so.

"People think you live in a small, suburban town, and you're immune to this stuff. And you're not," she said.

"I don't think people can get a good grasp on how many children are dying from overdoses. They're too ashamed to put it in the paper," she added. "People don't really understand how bad it is."

"Instead, people use obfuscating language like 'accidental' or 'surprising' or 'sudden' when referring to a drug-related death.

"She said she realized that 'nothing is going to change if people don't start speaking up' - which is why she agreed to appear on the Katie Couric show...."

Borrazzo is a member of the Tewksbury chapter Learn to Cope, a support group, which began in 2004.

"Initially, she didn't want to do the show. She didn't want to exploit her son," notes the "Crier."

"But then she thought of the others - those who might be struggling, who might be at the beginning of an addiction. And she admitted that, as a parent, 'You'll grasp at anything to save your child.'..."

"She said the opening of the Tewksbury Detox Center is 'huge'

"...there are 4,000 people on the Learn to Cope website, which is www.learn2cope.org ..."She's thankful, too, that, in addition to Learn to Cope, the Tewksbury Police work hard to educate residents...."

MORE IN THIS CASE IS BETTER (WOBURN)

"The owner of the Tanner Tavern asked the City Council's Infrastructure & Public Lands Committee at its recent meeting if the city would consider selling him some municipally-owned land so he can provide more parking in Woburn Center," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Robert Palmer said the proposed parking lot - along Manns Court near Magazine Hill - would be available to the public and not just for patrons of his restaurant on Main Street.

"Some work would be required to create the parking spaces, but he told the committee he would be willing to make it work if the city makes the land available.

"I'd love to get some more parking," said Palmer. "I'm just trying to think a little bit outside the box."...."

"About the Towns" covers recent events in the 10-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper or look on line for up-to-date information about your city or town.

We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About the Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867 or to schooltowns@comcast.net.

•The FORR Summer Track and Field Clinic will focus upon the technical events of track and field. Participants will be introduced to three throwing events: shot put, discus, and javelin. They will also be introduced to three jumping events: high jump, long jump, and triple jump. We will work to build a familiarity and a sense of understanding with each of these events.

In addition, the participants will learn the fundamentals of hurdling, the use of starting blocks in hurdles and sprints, and the basics of relay races.

Each session will begin with a thorough "dynamic" warm up and a number of drills designed to prepare each participant for competition. We will also include several "simulated" track workouts to give the participants a greater sense of the demands of a serious track and field program upon its athletes.

The learning sessions will run through the first 3 days of the Clinic. Thursday will be a day of competition. Each participant will select events in which he or she will compete. In addition to the field events listed, we will also compete in hurdles, 100 meter dash, 200 meters, 400 meters, and a distance race for those interested. We will also place athletes in groups for relay races at the end of the session.

The Clinic will run from 9:00 am until Noon, July 8th to 11th and is open to girls and boys entering Grades 6, 7, 8, and 9.

Dinner Challenge Part Three - Chicken and Veggies

The dinner challenge is a task that chefs small and large face each and every day. Hosted by food blogger Heather Atwood, our competition was set up as a fun event that had the mission of feeding a family of four using less than $10.00 in less than 30-minutes. The battle was between Laurie Lufkin and Jim Bailey, The Yankee Chef. In parts one and two chef Laurie Lufkin prepared lemon chicken with broccoli pasta with escarole. It indeed is a hearty meal. In the conclusion, or part three, of our dinner challenge Bailey prepares chicken with glazed apples and vegetables.

Bailey uses simple ingredients and easy cooking methods to produce complex flavors. By mixing a variety of spices including garlic powder, cayenne pepper, brown sugar and cinnamon, Bailey creates a flavor explosion that the chicken embodies. The meal is easy and fun to prepare and you can successfully make it using only one pan, so cleanup is just as fast.

This delicious yet inexpensive 30-minute restaurant quality meal is ideal for your next family dinner, and remember that you can always substitute your family's favorite vegetables if cauliflower, broccoli and carrots do not reach the top of the list. Also, watch all three parts to see if you have a favorite.

Ingredients

- 2 - 6 ounce chicken breasts
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 2 apples, peeled, sliced.
- 2 cups vegetable medley
- ½ cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon

See the video on our website food.homenewshere.com

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Mix spices together and coat the chicken breasts.
2. Heat a vegetable oil over medium heat in a medium to large skillet.
3. Place the chicken breasts in the skillet and cook for 3-5 minutes per side.
4. Peel the apples, quarter them and remove the core. Slice the apple wedges into thin wedges, roughly 6 wedges per quarter.
5. Remove the chicken from the skillet and set it aside. To the skillet, add orange juice and brown sugar and cinnamon.
6. Bring the mixture to a boil and add the vegetable medley and apples.
7. Cover the mixture and cook for 4-6 minutes, or until the vegetables are fork tender.
8. Place the chicken back in the skillet to heat it.
9. Plate and serve.

Houses of Worship In The United States!

The First Congregational Church of Woburn can trace its roots back to the earliest days of the colonial period and the founding the original Massachusetts Bay colony. The church opened its doors in August, 1642 and has been in continuous operation since. Although the structure has been changed and updated numerous times over its 370+ year history, today it is the tallest and largest wooden structure of its type, standing 196 feet tall with a capacity to seat 1,500 people. The building has been on the National Register of Historic Places since 1992.

Several years ago, as the result of a severe New England hurricane, the front of the church suffered extensive structural and aesthetic damage. The church tried to raise the funds needed for repairs through donations, fundraisers, and grants, but these efforts to date were not able to generate the money needed for this essential project. A group of church trustees suggested that the organization sell the church's collection of silver beakers and loving cups. These artifacts, although property of the church since the 1700's, had been cataloged by the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and had been in storage there for over 100 years. As a matter of fact, the last time the vessels were on public display was 1967.

What you need to know about primary mortgage insurance

Primary mortgage insurance, or PMI, protects lenders in the event that borrowers default on their primary mortgage by ceasing to make payments, resulting in homes ending up in foreclosure.

But all borrowers do not have to pay PMI. Typically, home buyers must make a 20 percent down payment on a home when they buy it. However, some borrowers are unable to put down 20 percent. In such instances, the lender will require they pay PMI.

This is because the lender views a borrower who cannot make an initial 20 percent down payment as a riskier investment, and lenders charge PMI in an effort to protect themselves should the borrower prove worthy of their skepticism.

PMI will be factored into the monthly mortgage payment, but borrowers should know they do not have to continue paying PMI once they have paid enough toward the principal amount of the loan.

For most, this means once they have paid 20 percent of the principal, then they can ask that the monthly PMI payment be removed.

Many borrowers are unaware of this or even forget to ask, but it's within their rights as borrowers and can save a substantial amount of money over the course of the mortgage loan.

US new home sales hit fastest pace in 5 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new homes rose in May to the fastest pace in five years, a solid gain that added to signs of a steadily improving housing market.

New home sales rose 2.1 percent last month compared with April to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 476,000, the highest level since July 2008, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The median price of a new home sold in May was $263,900, up 3.3 percent from a year ago.

Sales of new homes remain below the 700,000 annual rate that's considered healthy by most economists. But the pace has increased 29 percent from a year ago.

Analysts say the housing recovery is looking more sustainable and should continue to boost economic growth this year, offsetting some drag from higher taxes and federal spending cuts.

The sales gains in May were led by a 40.7 percent increase in the Midwest followed by a 20.7 percent gain in the Northeast. Sales were also up 3.6 percent in the West but they fell 9 percent in the South.

The inventory of unsold homes rose 2.5 percent to 161,000 in May, the highest level since August 2011 but still just 13 percent higher than the record low for inventories set in July 2012. Prices of new homes have been rising in part because more people are bidding on a limited number of homes.

The National Association of Realtors reported last week that sales of previously occupied homes surpassed 5 million in May. It was the first time that's happened in 3½ years.

Sales of previously owned homes rose to an annual rate of 5.18 million in May. The last time sales had exceeded 5 million was in November 2009, a month when the pending expiration of a home-buying tax credit briefly inflated sales.

Steady hiring and low mortgage rates have encouraged more people to buy homes. And with demand up, prices rising and few homes on the market, builders have grown more optimistic about their prospects, leading to more construction and jobs.

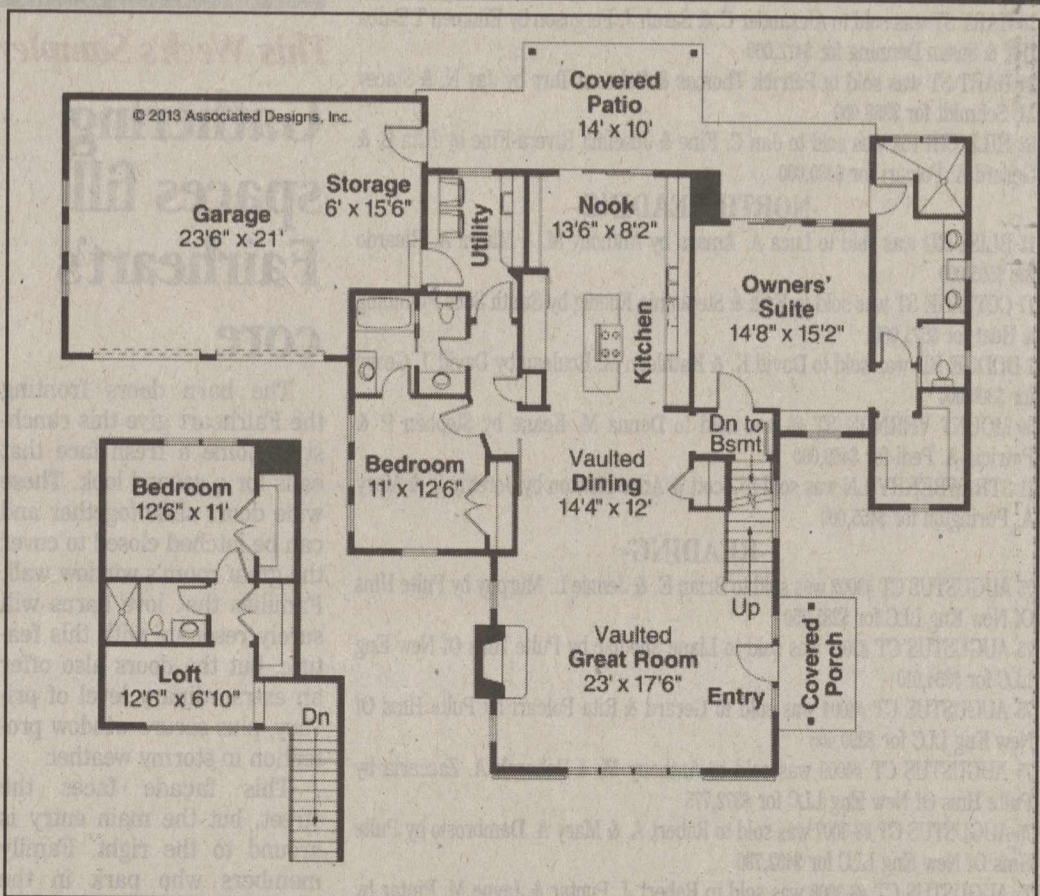

Last week, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke cited the housing gains as a major reason the Fed's economic outlook has brightened.

Still, mortgage rates have jumped in recent weeks. And they're expected to rise further now that the Fed has signaled it plans to scale back its bond purchases this year if the economy continues to strengthen. A pullback in the bond purchases would likely send long-term borrowing rates up. Higher mortgage rates could slow some of the housing market's momentum.

For now, a brighter outlook for housing has made builders more optimistic. The National Association of Home Builders/Wells Fargo builder sentiment index rose in June to 52, up from 44 in May.

That was the highest reading in more than seven years and the largest monthly increase in more than a decade. A reading above 50 indicates that more builders view sales conditions as good rather than poor.

Who is responsible for repairs during a home sale?

Many questions arise during the home-buying process. Buyers looking at homes that require a good deal of TLC may wonder who is responsible for the home's repairs, particularly if such repairs are needed to secure a certificate of occupancy. Depending on the situation, there is no clear-cut answer.

There is no perfect home, and things that are acceptable to the current owner may not be acceptable to the buyer who is looking to become the next owner. The home-buying process is typically a careful cooperation between buyer and seller to find a middle ground. The buyer may have to make some concessions, as will the seller. Ultimately, it is this cooperation that often determines if the sale goes through or is terminated.

Before any negotiations can begin regarding repairs, it is advisable for a buyer to have an independent inspector come out and look over the home and property. Most real estate agents will suggest this be done as a first priority — even before a contract is entered on the home. An inspection will unveil any potential problems in a home and indicate things that the buyer may not be aware of, including items that do not meet with code or could be unsafe. An inspector also may point out problems that could cause a mortgage lender to give pause. This may mean the lender will deem problems unsafe and refuse to fund the mortgage until repairs are made.

A copy of this inspection report should be sent to the home seller to review with his or her attorney and real estate agent. The buyer working with his own real estate attorney and agent can petition for certain repairs to be made. Many sellers will make such repairs to ensure the purchase goes through, or they will accept a lower purchase price to compensate for the needed repairs, which the buyer will then make. Buyers might want to hire a good real estate attorney to write clauses into the contract to protect their interests. This allows the buyer to forfeit the sale and walk away from the contract should an issue arise.

The rules often change when buying a home that is a short sale or in foreclosure. A home that is in distress is typically in this situation because the current owners cannot afford to pay their mortgage, and thusly, are not able to afford repairs. According to Think Glink, a money-management Web site, buyers may try to negotiate repairs with the seller, but they shouldn't assume that sellers (or lenders in the event of a bank-owned home) are responsible for the repairs. Generally speaking, most short sales and foreclosures are sold "as is" and may even specify that repairs and requirements for the certificate of occupancy are the buyer's responsibility. A buyer also can ask to have the home price reduced to cover the repairs. But foreclosures are often already deeply discounted.

Buyers should know that, for a home that is not in foreclosure, there are some repairs that should ultimately be the responsibility of the seller. If these repairs are not made, a buyer should think strongly about walking away from the deal, according to Why6Percent.com, a real estate marketing site. Such repairs include:

* lender-required repairs that could impact home safety

- * leaky pipes
- * water penetration issues, including a bad roof
- * unsafe decking or handrails
- * wet basements or crawl spaces
- * insecure foundations or obvious structural damage
- * poorly functioning sewer lines or septic system

area to the flat-ceilinged kitchen. Open shelves line the wall above the sink and its long counter. While the kitchen is large, the basic work triangle of sink-stove-refrigerator is designed to minimize steps. The nook is large enough to accommodate a good-sized table, and a covered patio is easily accessible through sliding glass doors.

Another, more private, covered patio nestles into a recess just outside the spacious owners' suite. A hot tub would fit in nicely here, conveniently close to the suite's bathroom. Bedroom two, on the other side of the kitchen, has a door into the main bathroom. The Fairheart's third bedroom is upstairs, near a bathroom, plenty of storage space, and a loft that overlooks the great room.

This Week's Sampler:

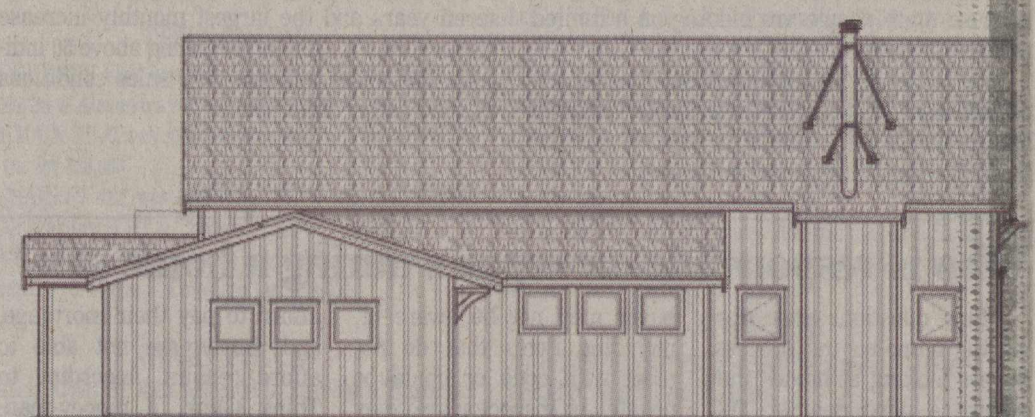

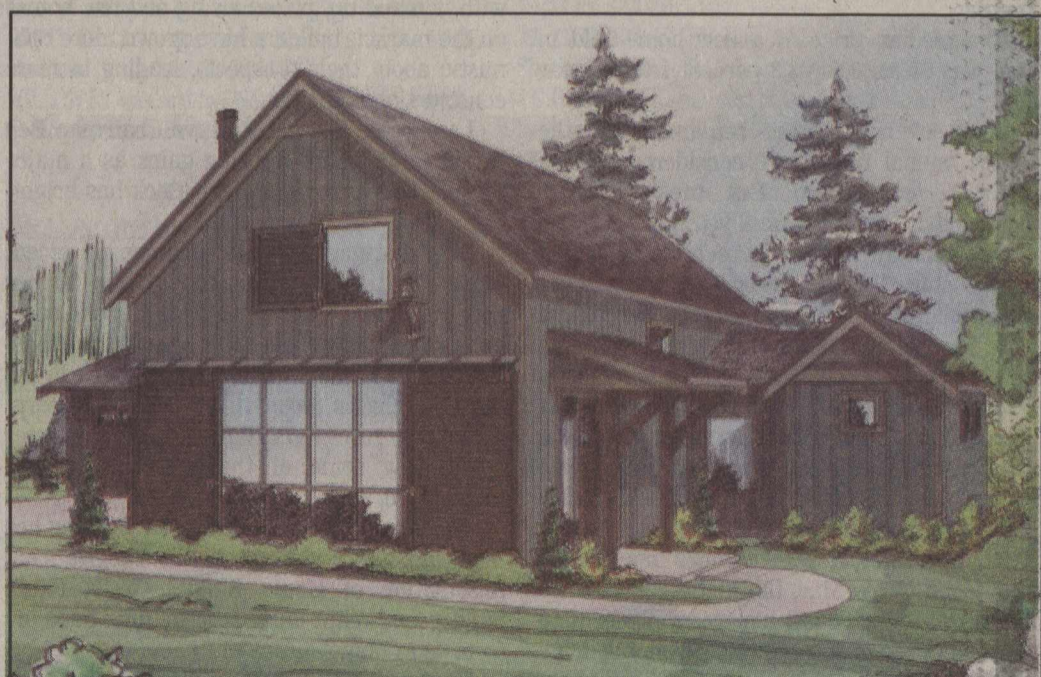

Gathering spaces fill Fairheart's core

The barn doors fronting the Fairheart give this ranch-style home a fresh face that calls for a second look. These wide doors slide together and can be latched closed to cover the great room's window wall. Families that love barns will surely resonate with this feature, but the doors also offer an extraordinary level of privacy, plus secure window protection in stormy weather.

This façade faces the street, but the main entry is around to the right. Family members who park in the garage can enter via the pass-through utility room near the kitchen.

Gathering spaces flow together at the core of this plan. Nothing separates the vaulted living room and dining area, where the ceiling soars up from the entry to a central apex, then slopes down toward the wood-burning fireplace. Windows fill most of the front wall, and more light spills in through wide sidelights flanking the front door, and small windows on both sides of the fireplace.

A cased opening marks the transition from the dining
